Fresh, elegant and textured with silk, this graceful Megas Oenos is in fine form this year. At the moment, it is too tinged with new wood, but that will get better. It has a very Burgundian demeanor, with its texture, mid-palate finesse and its understatement in various ways. It is also bursting with red-fruit flavors, the young Agiorgitiko amazingly exuberant in its youth. It's not so understated there, at least, in its youth. It's unusually ready to drink (some years have been rather tart—that's not an issue this year), but it's also unusually tasty this year too.

This brand has proven that it ages very well.
