“ You

can feel the ambition packed into this wine as soon as you lift the extra-thick bottle. Then you'll smell it, in the pale, creamy, spicy scent of barrels. Sourced from a vineyard in Amyndeon planted in sandy clay at 1,755 feet of elevation, it lives up to its packaging, presenting assyrtiko in the style of Grand Cru Chablis. It's rich, round and savory, the flavors presented in shades of beige—spice, earth, cream—with the variety's inherent acidity pulling everything into a tailored, precise line. It holds that line for days after opening, the

“This is un-oaked and comes in at 13.2%. A little flinty, surprisingly aromatic for Assyrtiko, and long on the finish, this is beautifully focused and precise. The mid-palate is surprisingly full - it feels concentrated yet seems quite elegant. It grabs the palate and doesn't let go. It expresses the grape well. The finish has very respectable length.”
